CITY NEWS.

The state board of equalization, composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary, freasurer and auditor of state, convened to day in the state building, as required by law, but owing to some of the railroads failing to make their returns an adjournment will be had until the 6th of July.

George Rozier, the well known fourth ward groceryman, and whose place is the headquarters for fourth ward republicans, was placed on trial to-day for perjury on last election day, and the forenoon was spent in arguing motions to quash because of defective indictment and defective law, Judge Turman is on the bench, and Mr. Fishback will conclude the arguments on these motions this afternoon.

Indicred and Arrested.

To-day Mr. James A. Is rigg, of the fourth ward, and Charles Glazier gave bond to answer indictments for violation of the election law last month, and it is whispered that a score and more against other well known parties are awaiting service. Somehow the attaches of the court are strangely reticent, and a list of the indicted at present is hard to ascertain. It is whispered, however, that Counciman Ison, of the ninth, Esq. Schmidt and Patrolman Shearer are among the accused, and that some pretty tail timber of both political parties will be girdled before the docket is cleared. Seeing is believing especially as so far the democratic officials have found none but republicans to stir up. To-day in addition to the above, Jesse Fugh was placed under $500 bonds for fallure to appear as a witness in the Dickson perjary case, and Joseph K. Turner was held on $2,000 security for forging the name of Esq. Coulon and using his notarial seal to certain deeds. The accustd claims that he will establish that Mr. Coulon, who is the complainant, authorized both when the two occupied the same office together.

The Board of County Commissioners is setting to-day as a court, in examination of the charges and specifications placed on file some weeks ago by George W Smith, trustee of Warren township against Wm. Horton, who held that positions are the setting to t against Wm. Horton, who held that posi-tion during the years '72, '73 and '74. The charges in substance is that he did not make proper bestowal of public monies in his possession; for instance, selling a school house and making no return; claiming that he paid C. Huffman over $1,500, when in fact he had not, and Huffman had not worked sufficient for one-fourth the sum; dispensing money for sheep killed to one sufficient for one-fourth the sum; dispensing money for sheep killed to one Redding, who never owned a sheep, and other mis-statements (as it is mildly put), which, if true, will set aside the record and compel a new statement by the extrustee. To these charges the defendent has entered a general denial, and has secured Duncan in defense. Ritter is prosecuting. The trial has brought out numerous Warner townshipites, and there are enough witnesses to last for several days if judiciously handled.

Union Fraternelle Francaise.

The meeting called by the Union Fraternelle Francaise for yesterday, to arrange for participation in the July 4 celebration, was largely attended by the French residents, and Peter Routier, Ch. Manny, Joseph Lamotte, A. Girouard, and John Pasquier were directed to wait upon the central committee and report. The suggestion was accepted to represent Lafayette and staff in the grand parade, and the following distribution of characters was made: "Marquis De LaFayette." Chae. Manny; "Count De Rochambeau," Charles, Lamotte;" Baron De Kalb, "A. Girouard, It was also ordered to have an allegorical chariot representing "Liberte, fraternite, charlot representing "Liberte, Iraternite, egalite and la belle France," the characters to be personated by four young ladies, surrounded by a group of children. Peter Routier and Dr. T. A. Wagner we e appointed marshals, and a second meeting of the club was ordered for July 2, 2 p. m.

Chief Engineer Sherwood is having a goug placed in the council chamber for his special benefit during Monday evening a session of that body. The No. 3 Amoskeag engine wentinto service to-day, having been in the repair shops several weeks, and the 7's boys have been transferred back to their old quarters. The chief reports the old No. 4 Latta engine badly out of repair, and that it will cost eight hundred dollars to put it in reliable working order. Such an outlay is considered inadvisable, and it is probable the fire board will recommend its exchange in part payment for a new Latta. The No. 8 boys are very poorly provided for in their East Washington street quarters, the premises being unhealthy; so much so, indeed, that the board of health have notified the authorities of its bad condition and ordered a general cleaning un ties of its bad condition and ordered a general cleaning up.

A Sunday Ducking.

An immersion that was not a baptism took place in the capal yesterday. The minister was not there, but all the other requisit swere—the water, the vicilm and various pious remarks. There was also a verious pious remarks. There was also a boat wrong side up, with a type-setter of one of the daily offices underneath. While under, the drippings from the Roberts Park sanctuary were rinsed out, and the Sunday-school lesson of one hour before clear forcot. Had he been truly good, possibly he would have drowned right there and then; as he is not his superintendent and teachers are given opportunity for more thorough reformatory work. Boat riding on Sunday is wicked, particularly for a clumsy oarsman, and when one is in good clothes, a Sunday ducking provokes more profanity than pious thoughts, as a general thing.

Yesterday's Services.

The inclement weather detracted much from attendance upon church services yesterday. Rev. E. C. Sickles, of Dixon, Illinois, occupied the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church, his moraing discourse being based upon the text. "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly."

"Christ our only salvation" was the subject of a very acceptable sermon by Rev. Dr. Shedd, of the Garden Baptist Church, who indicated Christ to be the door, and faith the means by which to enter.

Quarterly meeting services were held at Roberts Park and Trinity M. E. Churches, Drs. Holliday and DeLaMatyr presiding, and this evening a love-feast is announced at both these churches.

At the First Baptist Church last evening the ordinance of baptism was administered to five persons by Dr. Day.

After this a general handshaking took place, and Mrs. Hayes was called upon to endure a severe ordeal in that line. She was dressed in brown silk, fashionably cut; lavender kid gloves, white tie and bonnet of black, trimmed with white ribbon and rosse. Her hair was done up in the old style of forty years ago, parted down the sides of the forehead, but her highly expressive and prepossessing face made a very favorable impression. Every one departed delighted with Mrs. Hayes.

The Pall Creek Cut-off.

That local Schleswig-Holstein question, the Fall creek cut-off and Patterson's eleven acres, has a possible chance for coming up for consideration by the council this evening. It has been coming for months, and has been so often written up in these columns that the public is familiar with the trouble. The News looks with delight upon the Sentingle's present vigorous interest, for at a time when the Pall creek cut-off elephant could have been prevented it was disgustingly silent. The mischief is one handed down to the present council by demogratic regime, and the city is comparatively forced to make the best terms it can with Patterson and the Stringtown bank owners. At least it looks that way.

The Caldwell Dispatch, Ect. Washington, June 19.—The Western Union telegraph company produced some telegrams before the house judiciary committee to day, and from these it appears the celebrated exculpatory dispatch from Josiah Caldwell to Knott about Blaine was sent to Caldwell from Washington, with a request to cable it immediately to the chairman of the house judiciary committee.

[Special to Cincinnati Commercial of to-day.] PROSPECTS OF A DEAD LOCK ON APPROPRIATION

Members are at sea as to what will be done in congress during the ensuing week. Republicans are ready to proceed diligently with the necessary legislation, but the democrats are in a quandary. The latter realize that a great amount of work ought to be done before the expiration of this month in order to provide means and regulations for running the government during the coming fiscal year, but their hot heads and impracticables are likely to succeed in their purpose to cause a dead lock between the two houses on the appropriation bills, by declining to accede to any material compromise between the excessive reduction appropriations made by the house and the more reasonable ones proposed by the senate. It is quite evident that this subject will excite considerable life and activity in congress next week. If the subject will excite considerable life and activity in congress next week. If the democrats shall accept the remedy for the impending difficulty which was suggested by the president in his message to congress yesterday, it will be after they shall have become accustomed to the nausea produced by the contemplation of the fact of their being compelled as a dernier resort to accede to any proposition submitted by President Grant,

Has not yet received from the president a reply to the former's letter of resignation which was handed to Grant yesterday afternoon. Bristow says that it would not be proper for him to give out a copy of the letter for publication, but he expects the president to do so at the right time. The letter is said to be exceedingly spley and will afford good reading matter.

The fire broke out at the hotel of Richelieu street, in Bosquet's steam saw mill. A strong southwest wind caused the fire to spread rapidly. The aqueduct water had been shut off to repair the engine, necessitating the fire engines to draw a supply from the river, which added to the delay. A steamer arrived from Montral at 11:30 a. m., and engines and hose companies from St. Albans at 1 o'clock, but the fire had nearly swept the entire length of Richelian street to the locks, and through the cross streets St. George, St. James, St. Charles, St. Panl and Midget street, to Champlain, burning all the buildings on the east and some on the west eide. The Czar yesterday, in taking leave of a lady who wished him a good journey, replied with undisguised satisfaction, "I hope I shall spend more tranquil days at Ingenshelm than those I have passed at Ems." Such a remark as this is tantamount to a specified promise; and it may be inferred that the European powers are determined to remain speciators of what passes between Turkey and har subjects and vassals. That does not mean that the pacification of Turkey is an accomplished fact, or that it is on the eve of being effected. The insurgents do not seem disposed to lay down their arms nor Montenegro nor. Servia to abandon their pretension of annexing, the one Herzegovina and the other Bosnia with consent of Turkey herself, but what is known to-day appears to indicate that the parties will not support the insurgents and their neighbors, though none will endeavor to thwart their designs. When the insurgents and the Porte's forces come face to face, and Europe is seen to remain spectator this insurrections a will perhap finish as it began, that is, without anybody knowing the reason why. At the present moment everybody, and particularly the six powers are convinced that peace will not be disturbed beyond the frontiers of Turkey.

They say the riots were not caused by any suffering, but by a general impression among the negroes that the isnd and property of the planters would be divided among them with the Governor's consent. They state that they cannot tell how this impression was created, but it was undoubtedly general, and the belief is still very general that all this property has been awarded to the negroes by the queen at the governor's instance, and is being wrongfully withheld from them. Consequently the feeling against all property owners is intensely bitter and heattle, and will require firmness and judgment on the part of the authorities to remove this impression, even if it is removable during the present generation. and promises to give his opinions upon the platform at an early date. The Governor's opinion upon the financial part of it is well known, for a few weeks ago he said that he was not in favor of the repeal of the resumption law, unless the act repealing it should provide for more prompt resumption than the present aw. This is about all there is in the platform worth expressing an opinion about.

THE dead-lock between the house and senate continues, and there is but ten days until the close of the fiscal year, when if appropriations are not voted the machinery of government will be impeded and possibly stopped. The president has issued a message calling upon congress to effect some compromise by which the appropriations can be voted, and this will probably be done this week, for neither party can afford to have the necessary work retarded.

THE prospects for fine crops in this part of the state have never been exceeded, with the exception of wheat. That will scarcely be an average one, and may fall considerably short. But oats, bay, potatoes and fruit are exceedingly good, grasses never having been better, and corn is doing finely everywhere, with an increased acreage. Farmers never worked harder than they are working this year, and their fields as a rule give evidence of very careful cultivation. The weather will have to be very disastrous if we have to go out of the state to buy anything this year, and the probability is there will be such quantities to sell as will make money abundant and trade brisk.

THE Terre Haute Express rises to the courage of its convictions and refuses to support Mr. Hayes. The Express has always been a consistent republican paper whose influence in the Wabash valley was marked. It is affected by soft money views and long since declared that it would support no hard money candidate. At the same time it denies the imputation of going into the democratic party but announces that it will support William Alfen if the soft money democrats bolt from the St. Louis convention and nominate him. If not, then it will go for Peter Cooper. This is a serious defection for the republicans, and an unexpected one. It s both courageous and consistent, and while we do not believe the doctrines the Express teaches, we admire its bold-ness and sincerity in advocating them. Were all papers as honest and fearless, there would be better politics in this

Mr. Bristow retires from the cabinet this week, after making a record that no member ever surpassed. He retires with the regret of the country and doubtless to the pleasure of all the rings and thieves upon whom he has made such relentless war. It is no secret that the office has not been a pleasant one for some time. He would have been asked to resign long ago had it not been seen that forcing him out would have made him president. Added to this the labor has been great and the responsibility tremendous, so that it is not strange office holding should have no charm for Mr. Bristow after he has fulfilled his duty and accomplished a work that will make the path of his successor an easy one. Men like Bristow can not be spared. however, from public service and we hope at no distant day to see him called again to important trusts and surrounded by a sympathy that will give substantial aid and encouragement.

MAKW THEM KNOWN

The grain trade, controlled by Chicago, is still exercised over the excessive elevator and warehouse charges in that city, and warnings are still sounded that unless handlers reduce their prices they will see a considerable portion of the business slipping away from them. These warnings are not unfounded. The owners of the Chicago elevators do not seem to realize that this is a time of very close margins, when grain must be handled by buyers with the greatest economy in order to make a profit on it. They go on charging the same old prices and even more; as if Chicago was the only market, and they had a monopoly of the business. This blindness, however, makes to the advantage of other places, and this is plainly seen by a good many in Chicago, who have been trying to have the cost of warehousing cut down. It is no small benefit to this city. which is growing in favor as a market. We have as good facilities here for handling grain as they have in Chicago. Of course the capacity is not so great, but that will be remedied very easily as the trade comes. Our elevators are adequate for a much larger business than they have now. We have facilities of transportation equally as good as Chicago, with the exception of the lake, and that is closed six months of the year, and when open the competition of railroads often gives it no superiority in point of freights; and this city, being nearer the seaboard, always has an advantage of five cents on the hundred to begin with. Then this city is nearer the largest portion of the great corn growing country than Chicago, which makes freights cheaper to this place as well as from it. But the point we wish to call attention to now is the fact that the charges for transferring and warehouseing here are scarcely one-fifth as much as in Chicago, making a saving which is a profit in itself. It is not strange under these circumstances that this trade is growing and that there is good reason to believe Indianapolis will become one of the chief grain markets in the country as it is one of the principal pork packing points. But to reach this elevation requires more capital. There are not buyers enough here. There are plenty of brokers and commission men, but we lack home buyers of large means. There is a fine field here for large houses in this trade, and it would be well worth the trouble of eastern dealers to investigate this for themselves. With capital and enterprise to divert as much business to this point as possible, the trade could be increased to an astonishing extent. We should think it would pay the board of trade to take measures to advertise the advantages this city presents, or at least it would pay the dealers, brokers and elevator owners to do so, both by personal application as well as by letters and circulars. Something has been done in this line, but a united attempt would scarcely fail to secure desirable results.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC SPIRIT.

A little enterprise on the part of Indianapolis would have secured the building of at least one new railroad this year. In three or four directions roads have been projected to this city, and have met with far more than the usual encouragement along the line. But they could not be undertaken with a fair prospect of success without aid from this place. One line was designed as a coal road, and would have penetrated the center of the block coal field. Yet notwithstanding the acknowledged importance of such a feeder and the comparatively small cost at which it could be constructed as a narrow gauge, the public spirit necessary to such a work was lacking and the men in different counties who have been looking toward Indianapolis for help have been told as plainly as action could tell them, that if they want a road they will have to build it themselves. Another line was planned to pass through a tier of southern counties that have no direct communication with this city and which are rich in mineral resources as well as distinguished for agricultural products. The material value of any of the roads to this city is almost incalculable. They would make large populations dependent upon this city for hundreds of things and would bring a trade here that is now divided up between other places. Half a dozen narrow gauge roads could be built from this place and open up a country that is comparatively a stranger to us, and one that is increasing in value every year. Aside from agriculture, which forms almost the only basis of trade from them now, railroads would develope their country. Doubtless the republicans mines and quarries, and afford them a better market for their timber, an article which for years will be a source of wealth to many localities. These roads could be constructed without the great outlay we are accustomed to consider in talking of railroads. The people are generally ready to help, and the invest-ment of a few hundred thousand dollars here would give an ample basis of se-curity, upon which bonds could be issued to complete them. They can not be built upon paper, nor by forming an organization. Money must be put in them. There is no reason why such an investment should not be a profitable one. Stock fairly paid for in such a road ought to yield a reasonable dividend if well managed. It is of no use to stand idly by waiting work. It must be done here, if it is done at all. Poor Richard said, "God helps the man who helps himselt," and it is the universal lesson of human experience that a man must work if he would accomplish anything. If we want any more railroads here we will have to build them. This city is the product of the railroads. They have made it; upon them it depends; on them hang the hopes of its future progress and prosperity. Yet Indianapolis has no more to say in the management of any one of these lines or in the control of the smallest detail, than she has in the management of an ocean steamship line. The capital that has made her has been foreign capital mainly. We are not likely to get much more of this. The building of railroads has been so much overdone, and has resulted so disastrously in scores of instances, that capitalists shun such investments and will do for some years. We must depend upon ourselves and upon our own capital if we secure any more such advantages. It is true that we have no great amount of surplus capital and that men who have money think they can find investments much more profitable, but the answer to this is that if a united effort were made the amount of money required would be divided among so many that the burden upon any one would be light and the loss in profit would be small. Then the possible increase in trade and property would make a profit far ceeding any return that could be expected upon a moderate investment. We have a thousand men in this city who could well afford to subscribe five hunered dollars each to railroad enterprises, and five hundred thousand dollars would at this time accomplish a great work in that direction. That sum, with the aid derived from other points, would build a coal road and leave it free of debt.

The moral effect of such an undertaking during this year would have been immense. If we could have shown the country that hard times only redoubled the energy of Indianapolis and aroused an indomitable public spirit, it would have done a good that would not have ceased to be felt in ten years. People would have marked it as indisputable evidence of the soundness of this city, the solidity of its growth and the enterprise of its inhabitants-guarantees as well as requisites of progress. It is useless to disguise the fact that this city has been injured by portion of the population and the exaggerated tales that have been circulated about the condition of the people. More suffering was unnoticed last winter and more has prevailed in other places. But the agitation, produced partly for political effect, partly by men who want to live without work if they can, and partly by men who were in need, has created a bad impression, which is being used to our injury. That there was some foundation in fact for these rumors, is true. The circumstances made it natural that there should be, for we could scarcely have expected such activity in building as there was last year and the year before, even if the failure of crops had not depressed nearly all branches of activity. But the building of a railroad would have silenced much of this talk, if it ever had be gun. It would have given employment to several hundred men of the class most needing work, and would have been a convincing answer to any reports of retrogression. In this way alone it would have been worth more than it would have cost. It is not too late to do something now. If the city is to grow as it has done since 1869, every possible advantage must be turned to account. We must have more manufactures and to get them we must have chesp fuel, chesp material, a market, and these can only be had by get-and burdensome in effect.

The Hartford and New York steamers exhibit a melancholy commentary on Connecticut civilization. In their state rooms they have a notice posted which reads: "Passengers will please not go to bed with their boots on." Secretary Seward began an autobiogra-

The work will be published this summer, and will possess great historic interest. An Omaha journal says an old man fell asleep in a Council Bluffs church the oth-

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The Speaker and Ex-Speaker Once More-The Attempt to Get a Silver Circulation - Landers Red-Hot for Silver-The Anti-Resumptionists Ac-

[Correspondence of The Evening News.]
WARHINGTON, D. C., June 14, 1876. On Sunday last two of the most promi nent men in this country lay at death's door. The one was the speaker, the other the ex-speaker of the house of representatives. While news was rapidly spreading that Mr. Blaine had been stricken down with a sudden and mysterious illness, it was also whispered that Mr. Kerr was dving from the combined attack of disease and calumny. On Monday both men rallied, the one because he had received the most complete exoneration at the hands of the committee having his case in charge, and of the whole house: the other be cause of the magnificent physique which nature had given him. The scene in the house during the reading of the report submitted by Mr. Clymer as the unanimous expression of the opinion of his committee, and particularly while Mr. Danford was speaking, was indeed impressive, not to say thrilling. There was many a moist eye in that usually hard-hearted and inattentive body. and when a vote was called every man stood up. At the same moment a dispatch was received from Mr. Blaine's physician assuring the friends of the exspeaker that their favorite was rapidly recovering. For one happy moment there was a cessation of hostilities. Men forgot that they were political partisans, and only remembered that they were brothers, and while all hearts were yet softened by the one touch of nature which makes the whole world kin, the house adjourned The effect of this great vindication upon Mr. Kerr was almost magical. His symptoms, which had really become ning, at once began to disappaar and in a few hours a most notable change for the better took place. His relief was no ess intense than that of the doomed man who heard at the last moment that a pardon has been granted him. Whether Mr. Kerr will ever be able to resume his duties as speaker or not, is as yet a matter of grave uncertainty. He has gradually failed for several months until he is painfully reduced in flesh and strength. His physician, Dr. Pope, assures Mr. Kerr's friends that there is no immediate cause of alarm, and that it is quite possibly to restore his health in a few months at the THE CURRENCY OUESTION.

A few weeks ago an addition was made to the rules of the house empowering the committee of banking and currency to report financial measures at any time. The majority of the currency committee is probably not very sound on the money question, and would be in favor of an unconditional repeal of the resumption act, and therefore the majority in the house voted for the change in the rule, understanding that the first measure to be reported would be such a repeal. In this, however, they were mistaken. Mr. Cox. ported would be such a repeal. In this, however, they were mistaken. Mr. Cox, on last Saturday, had passed, under the operation of the previous question, two silver bills, the first known as the Randalbill. The Payne bill simply provides for the issue of $10,000,000 in silver coin in exchange for an equal amount of greenbacks, which are only to be reissued in the redemption of fractional notes. greenbacks, which are only to be reissued in the redemption of fractional, notes, which are to be destroyed. The measure is neither one of contraction nor of infation, and is only a means by which the issue of silver coins already authorized by the bill passed some months ago may be more speedily put into circulation. And yet, harmless as this bill was in its scope and intent, eighty-six men from the west and south, mostly democrate, voted in the negative, among whom were six of the Indiana delegation. The second bill provides for the issue of $20,000,000 in subsidiary coin, in addition to the amount vides for the issue of $20,000,000 in subsidiary coin, in addition to the amount already provided for, and upon the issue of this coin there is to be no corresponding retirement either of fractional currency or of greenbacks. It is in the nature of a sure inflation of the volume of the currency, and it is probably for that reason that there was little objection to its passage, so little, in fact, that no one called for the ayes and noes. The bill as originally reported by Mr. Cox from his committee might not have been so acceptable, as it provided that "the resulting coin may be issued in the ordinary disbursements of the treasury or in exchange for legal-tender botes at par." This would have been a mere substitution of silver for paper, and would, therefore, not have been quite up to the wishes of that large class of statesmen who think the yolume of currency should be made and kept equal to the wants of trade. It was only when Mr. Reagan, of Texas moved and had adopted an amendment striking out the words "or in inchange for legal tender notes at par," that all objection vanished and the bill passed. Mr. Reagan made considerable noise at the beginning of the session as a hard-money map, but has scarcely maintained his integrity. sidiary coin, in addition to the amount tained his integrity.

LANDERS FOR SILVER. Our own Mr. Landers, the high priest in Indiana of Old Bill Allen's remarkable financial policy, is becoming quite a champion of the silver changers. He was on his feet with an amendment to the bill providing for the issue of $100,-000,000 in silver dollars and fractional pieces, instead of $20,000,000, as contemplated by the committee. Of course the Hon. Franklin, inspired by his familiar, the Sage of Muncy. is interested prima-Hon. Franklin, inspired by his familiar, the Sage of Muncy, is interested primarily in the expansion of the volume of the currency. He would prefer paper to any sort of coin, but so long as silver may be purchased with greenbacks and the latter remain in circulation, the scheme becomes a little seductive. Indeed, there is no limit to the quantity of silver which might thus be issued by the passage of periodic bills of the Landers sort until we should have no end of money, and it would be for the most part in specie, too. How Mr. Landers can reconcile this surrender of his immortal principles is a question he may settle with his constituents for himself. However, the amendment was not adopted, though it must be confessed that at first blush one can not see any good reason for its rejecit must be confessed that at first blush one can not see any good reason for its rejection. It was of precisely the same character as the bill it proposed to perfect, only it goes a little farther. The explanation of this anomalous treatment of a measure so much in harmony with the spirit of the majority in the house is possibly to be found in the general distrust in in which members seem to hold the Indianapolis statesman. Ever since his unfortunate escapade with John Pope Hodinget and his black reason. dianapolis statesman. Ever since his unfortunate escapade with John Pope Hodnett and his black ragamuffins, he has been quietly accorded the position of the damphool of the house and to those who know White, of Kentucky and Page, of California, this is indeed a distinction.

The anxiety of the soft-money men to effect a repeal of the resumption act has grown into a settled determination. In pursuance of this object the Ohio men have constantly evinced an ardor which falls little short of fanaticism. The dervish of the east, who by violent genefluxions, springing and howling, works himself up to a pitch of frenzy, is a mild type of fanatic compared with the men from Ohio who recognize in Bill Allen their Mahomet, and the Enquirer the inspired Koran. They threaten the democratic party with dire ruin nuless their creed is openly adopted by the party, and they intimate that they will not lower the black flag until the name of William Allen has been placed upon the ticket at St. Louis. THE REPORT OF THE RESUMPTION ACT.

winter and spring these financial zealots have bent all their energies to devise some strategem by which they might spring a trap upon an unwary house and force a vote upon this much vexed question. So long as the committee on banking and currency declined to report such a bill, it could only be done on Mondays by a suspension of the rules, which requires a two thirds vove. As such a majority for soft money does not exist in the house, the "softs" were for a time in deepair. Such a measure can only come before the house on ordinary business. days by unanimous consent, and of course such consent would never be given. Lately it has happened that the business of the morning hour on Mondays does not fill the allotted space, so that the second call "for resolutions and bills on leave" may be entertained. The rule provides that all such matters as shall give rise to debate under this second call of the Monday morning hour shall over, but if the mover call the previous question, he may cut off debate and force a vote. This was done by Mr. Neal, of Ohio, on Monday, the 5th, when he offered a bill to repeal the resumption act. The point of order was made and sustained, however, that a member must give at least one day's notice before asking immediate action on a bill. On Monday lest Mr. Neal's bill would have come up egain as unfinished business under the second call, but here the strategy of the filibusters came in. In order to make the first call last the hour the hard money men insisted that the deark should read in full every bill offered for reference, no matter how unimportant and even trivial its character. Mr. Holman who saw that his friend Neal would be defeated, tried to have some of the members forego the pleasure of offering their bills, that the hour might thus be brought to a premature termination, but personal interest was too strong, and the hour was consumed; the strategists enjoyed a quiet victory, and the Allenites gnashed their teeth in impotent wrath. It will hardly be possible, however, to put offi

How the Liberals Feel, etc.

NEW YORK, June 19 -Colonel Ethan Allen was sought out by many prominent Allen was sought out by many prominent republicans yesterday, and many means were tried to induce him to commit himself as the appointed spokesman for the liberal republican party to the Hayes ticket. He was non-committal, however, and said he could not tell whether or not it would be incumbent on him tolcall the liberat convention until after the democratic nominee had been placed in the field. This might be, for aught he knew, a better man than Mr. Hays.

Fack Robbery at Peoria.

Peoria, June 19.—A bold robbery occurred in the Germania savings bank by which three men succeeded in getting away successfully with $7,5000 in currency. The robbery was a daring one, and the bold thieves have thus far escaped the officers. The whole city and county force are engaged in the pursuit, and it seems impossible for the villains to escape.

HAYES INTERVIEWED. His Sentiments on the Money Ques-[New York Herald Interview.]

Correspondent—I suppose you were somewhat surprised at the news of your nomination by the Cincinnati conven-

Governor Hayes—Well, after hearing the result of the first and second ballots the hopes of my friends were greatly raised. Arrangements had been made at the telegraph office, so that I knew how the voting went on. Perhaps before it was formally announced from the platform. By this means I probably knew of my nomination. means I probably knew of my nomination at least five minutes before the secretary gave out the official figures. I need not say that such an honor conferred by the republican party is deeply gratifying to Correspondent-What do you think of Correspondent—What do you think of the platform adopted at Cincinnati? Governor Hayes—I have not had an op-portunity of examining it as yet. I must read it over carefully. At a cursory glance I think it is an excellent one and glance I think it is an each open.

Correspondent—The candidacy of Mr.

Blaine received a very liberal support in Blaine received a very liberal support in in the convention.

Governor Hayes—It was, indeed, very complimentary to that distinguished gentleman and was richly deserved; no such fidelity or entitudiasm was ever exhibited in the cause of any candidate. His friends remained true to him from the beginning to the end. I believe that he received 361 votes on the seventh ballot. That is a proud record, and a just recognition of proud record, and a just recognition of Mr. Blaine's abilities and great services to proud record, and a just recognition of Mr. Blaine's abilities and great services to the republican party.

Correspondent—What do you think of Mr. Wheeler's nomination for the vice presidency?

Governor Hayes—I don't know much about Mr. Wheeler, but I believe that he possesses many excellent elements, great strength of character, positive ideas and a stern will to perform all the necessary duties of any office which he may be called upon to fill.

The financial question will not be so difficult to determine in the coming contest. The democrats are at sea on the issue themselves. They talk of repealing the resumption act, but what then? They do not make any proposition as to their next movement. I would like to know what the present democratic congress has done to solve the financial question; absolutely nothing. (Then turning to the Bavarian commissioner in an explanatory mood Gov. Hayes continued:—"You know we have a peculiar contest going on here between hard and soft money men know we have a peculiar contest going on here between hard and soft money men. It is a question as to the policy of the government getting some paper and there-upon placing its stamp, which paper shall stand for currency and be used the same asgold and silver."

WHO WAS BEATENAT CINCINNATION The Rings Went to Smash and the Re form Sentiment Triumphd,

[New York Sun of yesterday.] At first sight everybody appears to have been beaten at Cincinnati, except the smell delegation from Ohio; but this is a superficial view and does not penetrate the true inwardness of the case.

the true inwardness of the case.

The man most conspicuously beaten in that notional convention, indeed routed with ignominy, is Boss Grant. His name was not once mentioned with a cheer. Nobody ever suggested that they should vote for him as a candidate for a third term, and if that proposition had been made it would have been hooted out of the convention.

made it would have been hooted out of the convention.

The great republican opponent of Grant, namely, Mr. Blaine, was likewise beaten, and beaten signally. His struggles were arduous; his pluck enormous; his hopes sanguine; but, after a long and violent conflict, his banner went down and his followers surrendered. All his long and costly preparations, all his intrigues, all his acting, all his audacity, all his tricks went for nothing.

Jay Gould and Tom Scott were likewise beaten. They were both for Blaine. They wanted a railroad jobber for president; and we congratulate the country and the republican party that they could not succeed.

they have defeated all the candidates whose names were identical with corruption, and they have prevented the nomination of every advocate and representative of Grantism. They have less to regret and less to explain than any others among the various factions and divisions of the convention. We tender to the Bristow men our affectionate and respectful compliments.

A Firancial Straw from Congress. Washingten Correspondence Phila. Balletin.]
During the debate on the silver bills in the house on Saturday, and in which debate the two silver bills were passed, a most remarkable admission on the part of some of the "hard-money" men was brought out as against the feature in the resumption act of January 14, 1875, naming a date for resumption. Mr. Whitehouse, a "hard-money" man from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., stated that while he was in favor of the resumption of specie payments, he was opposed to anything like an impracticable date of resumption, and was prepared to vote at any time in favor was prepared to vote at any time in favor of any measure that would repeal that portion of the resumption act which names the date of resumption. This was considered quite remarkable, in view of the fact that Mr. Whitehouse is a man of great wealth and high social and business standing, and is a large owner of stock and director in several prominent country banks in New York. Mr. Whitehouse's short speech is considered a straw that promises to blow in the direction of a simple repeal of the date of the resumption act before congress adjourns for this session. As to the question of the status of the resumption act before congress now it may be said that it has no status at all. There is nothing tangible yet shown from or before the banking and currency committee in regard to it. It is highly probabilities to the possible of the property committee in regard to it. It is highly probabilities the status of the resumption of the status of the resumption and currency committee in regard to it. It is highly probabilities the status of the resumption and currency committee in regard to it. was prepared to vote at any time in favor mittee in regard to it. It is highly proba-ble, however, that no matter what the committee may do—for it is by recent resolution the committee of highest privi-lege in the house—the house will be apt to make a total repeal of the act. To this thing like a postponement or repeal of the date for resumption.

Flopping on the Currency.

It is no new thing for the party which calls itself democratic to "flop" on the currency question. Jefferson, to whom denocrats are accustomed to "point with pride," was a hard-money man. He expressed his sentiments in these words: "The truth is that capital may be produced by industry and accumulated by economy; but jugglers only will propose to create it by legerdemain tricks of paper money." The democrats stood with him in strong opposition to paper money, and especially to the United States bank, until 1816, when a democratic congress rechartered the bank, and the bank became a democrat institution. That was "flop" No. 1. In 1832 President Jackson began his war upon the bank, and the democratic party, with him as its leader, succeeded in destroying it. That was "flop" No. 2. From that time forward the democrats were for hard money, so far as the government was concerned though they did ally their share time forward the democrats were for hard money, so far as the government was con-cerned, though they did fully their share toward bringing into existence and foster-ing the successive wild-cat systems that followed the extinction of the United States bank as a national institution, un-til after the close of the war of the rebel-lion. Then, under the lead of such "Jeffer-sonian" democrats" as Pendleton they non. Then, under the lead of such "Jeirr-sonian democrats" as Pendleton, they "flopped" back to soft money. Or rather, considerably more than half of them "flopped," and now they hang suspended, one section on one side of the fence and the other on the other side. In view of its past record another "flop" is to be expected at any time; but which section will "flop" over to the other no man can tell.

How the Emperor of Brazit Ascended

Bunker Hill Monument.

[Boston Commercial Advertiser.] The janitor who had charge of Bunker Hill monument, arriving at about half-past 7 Friday morning to open the premi-ses, found two strangers in waiting. One a tall, gray-bearded man in a slouch hat, asked if they could ascend the monu-

"Yes," said the custodian, "you can for twenty-five cents! (holding out his hand).

The stranger produced the money, and the custodian unlocked the door and forth-with commenced sweeping out, raising a cloud of dust, and paying no especial attention to his visitor, who was looking about him curiously, until, half choked with dust, he inquired "if these were the steps."

Yes, all right, go shead, go right up til "Yes, all right, go ahead, go right up til you get to the top."

The visitor and his companion did as they were bid, and stayed some half an hour enjoying the beautiful panoramic view from the summit, after which they descended, and were quietly walking away when they were hailed by the custodian with—"H'var, just write your names in this book; all the visitors who go up the monument sign their names here."

The gray-bearded man laughed and signed his hame, and the two departed.

The custodian never looked at the book, but some hours afterward was electrified by one of the officers of the monument association, who chanced to come in, asking him in the most agitated manner, when hom Pedro, the emperor of Brazil, had been here.

Dom Fedro, the emperor of Brazil, had been here.

"Hasn't been here at all," was the reply.

"Hasn't been here! Why, here is his signature on your visitors' book. What does this mean?"

"What!" said the custodian, rushing up to the volume. "Why, good gracious! that written by a tall man with a slouch bat." hat."
And so it was; but the tall man was the emperor of Brazil, and this was the way he ascended Bunker hill monument, just like "any other man."

How Hayes Received His Nomina-

Governor Hayes remained in his office all day, quietly viewing the situation, and receiving as unconcerned as if he was not a candidate. When the sixth ballot was announced showing that he was steadily increasing, he exhibited signs of nervousness, and when the result of the seventh ballot, and his nomination was announced to him, his face turned almost perfectly white, and it was several moments before he seemed able to speak, as if still doubting and believing the news too good to be true. He inquired if it was a fact, and expressed a desire to see the figures. The matter was fully settled by the arrival of a message from the telegraph operator. Then the people began to join in extending their congratulations. There seemed to be no distinction of party, Democrats as well as Republicans rejoiced at the nomination. [Columbus telegram!]

the convention.

The great republican opponent of Grant, namely, Mr. Blaine, was likewise beaten, and beaten signally. His struggles were arduous; his pluck enormous; his hopes sanguine; but, after a long and violent conflict, his banner went down and his followers surrendered. All his long and costly preparations, all his intrigues, all his acting, all his audacity, all his tricks went for nothing.

Jay Gould and Tom Scott were likewise beaten. They were both for Blaine. They wanted a railroad jobber for president; and we congratulate the country and the republican party that they could not succeed.

The plan of fighting over a civil war is beaten. The bloody shirt waves no longer as the sacred republican standard it will be flaunted, of course here and there during the canvas, but its power is taken away, and nothing but inconceivable folly at St. Louis can restore it.

The only part of the republican party which has not been beaten at Cincinnati is that small band of honest, sincere men who desire reform and who had Ben Bristow for their candidate. They have not nominated their man, it is true, but ion on the bank. Alas! it was just too late the stone was rolled out of the way, but the hero was cut to pieces by the lange of the murderous train.

Installation Services.

The installation of Rev. Edgar L. Williams as paster of the eighth and twelfth presbyterian churches was largely attended yesterday afternoon at the Indianola church, Rev. J. R. Mitchell officiating as moderator. The reading of scripture by the moderator and prayer by Rev. L. F. Walker was followed by the installation sermon by Rev. E. B. Mason, from the text, "Preach the preaching I bid thee," the discourse being practical in its bearing and emenently suitable to the occasion. Installation Services.

The commission of presbytery anthorizing the installation of the new pastor was read by the moderator, after which the charge to the pastor was presented by Rev. C. H. Raymond, in which the duties of the pastorate were defined and the promised reward set forth to those who are faithful to the master's work. The charge to the congregation was delivered by Rev. L. F. Walker, who adjured the people to stand by their pastor, aid him in every good work and cheerfully discharge every known obligation in the relation of pastor and people. The closing prayer was made by Rev. Mr. White, of Iowa, the exercises concluding with benediction by the pastor.

The Eighth church was originally started in '69 by some of the young people of the First Presbyterian church, and was dnown as the West end mission, with H. D. Carlisle as superintendent. The place of meeting was the office of the soldiers home, but afterwards the school removed to the old butcher shoon on West Wash.

ot meeting was the office of the soldiers' home, but afterwards the school removed to the old butcher shop on West Washington street, near California street. In '74 the work came near pegging out, but early in '75, through the efforts of Kingan and others, the present property on Maryland street was purchased and paid for, and the mission continued with flattering prospects. The first continued service as pastor was rendered by Mr. Matthews, editor of the Sentinel, but it was not until last week that a regular church organization was made and a minister specially engaged for the pulpit. The future is promising, and there is abundant material in that part of the city needing evangelizing.

Amusements.

The Ben Dodge novelty troupe have left the city, disgusted with the financial result of their Academy engagement. The Opera-house Saturday evening was packed from orchestra chairs to topmost gallery, and the program by the Tony Pastor combination was received with every demonstration of delight. Crossley and Elder, in their Caledonian games, Gus Williams and Harry Kernell, Dutch and Irish comedians, and Lurline and Watson, in their aquatic feats, were the main points of the night, but all of them comson, in their aquatic feats, were the main points of the night, but all of them combined failed to receive the encore awarded to Tony Pastor in person, when he appeared before the foot-lights. What there is in his wretched voice, stupid songs and played-out mannerisms to raise such a furore is one of the singularities of the variety going public, "Baldy Cudney" was withdrawn from the Metropolitan Saturday night, and this week comes the sensational "Nick of the Woods," besides a number of new people. The drama of last week was written by Goodrich, and in many respects it stamps this young man as possessed of unusual dramatic ability. Owing to the absence of Lipman and the Beanes there was hardly a good distribution of characters, and this militated considerably against a fair judgment of its merits as a play. ment of its merits as a play.

A Court Episode.

The Elliott vs. May damage case, in Newcomb's room, closed Saturday with a verdict for defendant, the jury deciding that a compromise had once been accepted by the plaintiff. The suit was prosecuted by Bartholomew and Dubs and defended by Major Gordon, and while in progress a little episode occurred not unusual when hot tempered gentlemen are pitted in opposition. One of the plaintiff's witnesses was under cross-examination, and a response by the major to one of his replies caused the peppery Bartholomew to spring up and denounce Gordon as "ungentlemanly, unlawyerlike and unfair." Hardly were the words uttered before Major Gordon stood before him, every nerve quivering with passion, and demanded that he retract his words. Bartholomew stiffened his spine, changed color to several degrees whiter, and intimated that he was able to stand by what he had said; whereupon the major caught him by his patriarchal beard and shook him until his head bobbed like a puppet in a Funch and Judy pantomime. By this time the jury, witnesses and spectators were also excited, but the court managed to hold his equilibrium and enforce order from the combatants. Afterwards there were mutual apologies.

A 8100 License.

Some of the councilmen have been sounding the leading salconation regarding the imposition of a city license for the retail of liquor at rates not less than $100 per annum, and in consequence the smaller fry of beverage retailers are in a state of chronic excitement over the possible passage of such an ordinance. Perhaps it will be introduced to-night. Some of the salcon men look upon the scheme haps it will be introduced to night. Some of the saloon men look upon the scheme with favor, thinking it will crowd out the lesser lights and give them a monopoly of the business, and those in council argue that the city treasury will be benefitted fully $35,000, if not more—a handsome sum in these days—while it will have the effect to break up many of the little rumholes that now contribute so largely to the criminal expense. There are in the city over four hundred saloons in operation, besides many more places—drug stores and the like—where liquor is sold on the sly. If the ordinance passed, the police would have reason to look after the least mentioned, and with a high municipal license the saloon keepers who pay it will feel interested in putting down surreptitious opposition; hence, why not go ahead?

The Morris Lecture.

Ernest Morris the young naturalist, made his maiden appearance as a lecturer Saturday evening at the Academy, before an audience largely interested in him personally, and who havelaken delight in the success so far following him. His subject was his recent stay on the Amazon, in South America, and the peculiarities of the country, its climate and people, and the many strange growths in the animal and vegetable kingdoms were touched in entertaining words. Much of what he said found illustration in the specimens which he brought with him on his return, and his listeners were given ideas not always found in books concerning the mighty waters of the Amazon and the prolific lands lining its banks. It is the intention of Mr. Morris soon to revisit South America and resume his explorations, but it were better, did his finances permit, that he spendatienst two years in scientific preparation for the work to which he seems to fave devoted his young life. He has a brilliant superstructure, but not the foundation in learning to so classify and arrange his labor that it will give him standing among the scientists.

Gratorieat Contest.

The offer, extended through the state superintendent of prizes of $100 and $50 for the best oraiorical productions by residents of this county, under thirty years of age, is being very generally responded to, some dozen parties having already indicated their intention of entering the contest. The arrangement is for the productions to be submitted by the 20th of July, the final exhibition and award of prizes to be held at the Academy of Music on the last Wednesday of the same month. In the event there are too many competitors, a preliminary examination will be hed, at which a certain number will be designated, who shall participate in the final contest for the desired prizes. The speakers are permitted to choose their own subject upon which to orate, but are limited to eighteen minutes in their delivery. The project gives promise of being a complete success, and a lively interest is manifested in the final result.

Base Hall.

Saturday afternoon the Indianapolis club played the Philadelphias, beating them 2 to 1 in five innings, at which time game was called by reason of the heavy rain. In fact the visiting club had been whitewashed on the sixth inning, and the home club had the bases full with only one out and a good man at the bat when the rain interferred; and from this there is reason to believe the nine innings would have ended in their favor. The specialties of the game was a fine double play by Miller and McDermott, beautiful catches of fouls by Smith, a long throw from center field to third, in the nick of time, by West, and a healthy, sale hit to right field by Eden, which earn: d him two bases, and brought in the first tally, Smith. Eden captured three flies in left field, but the muffling of one and a wild throw to home plate gave the Philadelphias a run where none was earned. Dunn, substitute player for the home club, umpired the game impartially.

Saturday night the Philadelphias jumped to St. Louis and yesterday do hated the St. Louis 6 to 0. This morning they returned to this city to play the Indianapolis nine this afternoon, and it is on the program for a third bout to-morrow afternoon. The game to-day will be called at 4 o'clock. The impression is that the game of this afternoon is simply a continuation of Saturday's, but this is wrong. The game Saturday under the rules, closed on the fifth inning, and has passed to record as a substantial and clear cut victory for the Indianapolis nine.

Last evening the Cincinnati Red Stockings returned from their eastern trip, and according to the Enquirer of to-day the reception was not complimentary. The principal plunder returned with them in the shape of trophies was goose eggs.

A summary of the league games played shows the following score:

Won—Chicagos 21, Hartfords 18, Browns Mutuals 10, Bostons 10, Louisvilles 10, Athletics 8 and Cincinnatis 4.

Lost—Chicagoes 4, Hartfords 4, Browns 10, Louisvilles 14, Athletics 15 and Cincinnatis 20,

"A Kicker."
Yesterday John Stuck caused the arrest of Frank Amor and Engene Miller on a larceny charge, and a preliminary examination on this complaint will be had tomorrow, provided John appears as prosecuting witness. It seems that these three worthies were gambling Saturday, and John finally oversizing his pile, the other two by force compelled him to deliver his watch to their keeping, which watch they afterwards pawned at Kahn's for fifty dollars. It is hardly possible the larceny charge will stick, but if it don't, the three might be gobbled under the professional gambling act. "A Kicker."

To the Editor of The Evening News:

Will you please to correct two or three mistakes made in the card of Saturday evening, concerning the young woman's boarding house, located 181 East Ohio street. The card says, "the house is neatly and comfortably filled up." It was intended to say neatly and comfortably fitted up; were it well filled we would not ask for donations such as can be spared from so many houses in this city. Another says, "we have other associations, which if rightly directed, etc." Should have said we have other aspirations which if rightly directed, we hope at no distant day to realize, but must wait for the door to be opened, when we will gladly enter in, and, let me say right here, when we come to realize one of these aspirations it To the Editor of The Evening News: come to realize one of these aspirations it will just meet the long felt wantsuggested by L. L. J. in yesterday's Paople. We hope to open an industrial department, so that young women unemployed can have remunerative employment. If a hundred men and women of wealth with hundred men and women of wealth, with such a magnanimous soul as L. L. J. would come to our aid we could soon re-alize and enter into full possession of all our cherished hopes. ONE OF THE BOARD.

The advantages of an evening paper for advertising purposes are apparent on reflection. In the morning the day's work is before the husband and housewife; the paper is taken up, and a hasty glauce given to the telegrams and local news, and it is thrown aside for the and local news, and it is thrown aside for the cares of the day. There is no time to read further, and before evening the paper is transformed into a dress pattern or into a fire-lighter. The evening paper domes in at a time when the labors of the day are completed, and the hours between tea and bedtime are given to reading. The telegrams, local news and miscellany are all read, and still there are hours to spare, and the advertisements are read and re-read, and the bargains offered discussed in the family circle, and conclusions reached as to where to make purchases.
